

Advance Praise for EPowerment

If you are wondering what the “new normal” will be like for organizations and their leaders, check out this book. Izzy Justice pulls together an awesome amount of history, statistics, case studies, and differing viewpoints to show how the workforce and workplace has changed and what to do.

—Beverly Kaye, Best Selling Author of Love 'em or Lose 'em

EPowerment is a must read book because it will broaden your thinking about learning and functioning in today's world. Dr. Izzy Justice builds a compelling case that marries learning and technology with EQ and changes our thinking about the future.

—Adele B. Lynn, Author of six books on Emotional Intelligence

If you are interested in keeping your top talent in the digital 24X7 world we all live in - Izzy Justice has written a book for you. Here, you will learn how to weave Emotional Intelligence into the language of business and drive real business results.

—Jeanne C Meister, Co-author, The 2020 Workplace

If people are our most important asset, then empowering them is the Eureka of leadership. Dr. Justice breaks new ground by blending the intrinsic (Emotional Intelligence) with the extrinsic (the digital world) to produce Epowerment - a powerful roadmap for achieving empowerment. Companies and leaders from across the world participated in Epowerment making it a must read.

—Dr. Lance H.K. Secretan, Author of The Spark, the Flame and the Torch

Justice skillfully combines story, adult learning theory, cognitive and experiential models, and organizational practice to challenge our current understanding about empowerment. This is a must read for organizational leaders who are committed to creating a vibrant workforce in the 21st century.

—Dr. Lois J. Zachary, Author
